the goals and content for this book are derived from three important and ongoing efforts to advance the institution of education and to promote educational opportunities to children and youth worldwide to promote effective assessment policies and practices that enhance sound educational practice and to address the need to develop tests and other assessment practices in less developed countries as well as to augment and alter a number of traditional assessment practices in developed nations these three issues provided the focus for a four day conference that was held at St Hugh's College Oxford University in June 1993. The conference theme, 'Test Use with Children and Youth: International Pathways to Progress', underscores the importance of addressing testing issues as efforts to improve educational opportunities for children and youth move forward. Leaders from more than seventy nations met at the United Nations-sponsored World Summit for Children in 1990 to support ratification of the Convention on the Rights of the Child. Worldwide recognition that every individual has the right to develop her or his potential led to the ratification of provisions setting minimum standards for children's education.

This is the first fundamental text to focus specifically on forensic vocational rehabilitation, a field that is forecast to grow rapidly. Forensic vocational rehabilitation consultants evaluate the vocational and rehabilitation needs of individuals in an array of legal settings such as civil litigation, workers' compensation, social security disability, and others. The text explores the vocational rehabilitation process from a biopsychosocial perspective that views disability as a complex and multidimensional construct. The book comprehensively describes the parameters and theoretical issues of relevance in evaluating and developing opinions in forensically oriented matters. It culls and synthesizes current peer-reviewed literature and research on this private subspecialty practice area of rehabilitation counseling, including theories, models, methods, procedures, and fundamental tenets of the field. Also included is current information about the labor market, life care planning, and professional identity standards and ethics. The text is designed for graduate and postgraduate students in rehabilitation counseling and psychology, as well as practicing forensic vocational rehabilitation consultants and professionals moving toward practice in this arena. Chapters are authored by noted scholars or published practitioners in each subject area and include an introduction to the content area, discussion of key terminology and concepts, and a review of the current and historical literature with emphasis toward future research needs and evidence-based practice. The book fulfills the requirement by the Commission on Rehabilitation Education Core for Training in this subject area at the graduate level for new certification or certification maintenance. Key features comprise the only foundational text to focus specifically on forensic vocational rehabilitation, synthesizes peer-reviewed research into one authoritative source, describes the role, function, and scope of practice of the rehabilitation counselor in private forensic vocational rehabilitation practice, fulfills core requirements for certification.
