in 2001 the first of a series of ethnographic conferences took place in los angeles with an emphasis on fieldwork since then the field has gained a much larger disciplinary footprint while the increase in substantial research in the field has risen dramatically ethnographic styles of writing have emerged that fail to include much discernible fieldwork this volume of the annals broaches the subject of improving fieldwork in the ethnographic spectrum through old fashioned or shoe leather fieldwork at a more recent ethnographic conference at yale university in 2010 with a follow up in june 2011 emerging ethnographers were mentored by senior scholars in which they presented an informal yet supportive setting where ethnographic fieldwork could be constructively critiqued this volume is a product of those collective efforts the articles in this volume include insight into relations among affluent minorities the status system we find in today's sports and a portrait of an employer of undocumented workers among other articles this volume will appeal to both undergraduate and graduate students with a wide range of interests including sociology education anthropology and race and gender conflicts and problems heritage and its economies are driven by affective politics and consolidated through emotions such as pride awe joy and pain in the humanities and social sciences there is a widespread acknowledgement of the limits not only of language and subjectivity but also of visibility and representation social scientists particularly within cultural geography and cultural studies have recently attempted to define and understand that which is more than representational through the development of theories of affect assemblage post humanism and actor network theory to name a few while there have been some recent attempts to draw these lines of thinking more forcefully into the field of heritage studies this book focuses for the first time on relating heritage with the politics of affect the volume argues that our engagements with heritage are almost entirely figured through the politics of affective registers such as pain loss joy nostalgia pleasure belonging or anger it brings together a number of contributions that collectively and with critical acuity question how researchers working in the field of heritage might begin to discover and describe affective experiences especially those that are shaped and expressed in moments and spaces that can be at times intensely personal intimately shared and ultimately social it explores current theoretical advances that enable heritage to be affected released from conventional understandings of both heritage as objects and objects as representations by opening it up to a range of new meanings emergent and formed in moments of encounter whilst representational understandings of heritage are by no means made redundant through this agenda they are destabilized and can thus be judged anew in light of these developments each chapter offers a novel and provocative contribution provided by an interdisciplinary team of researchers who are thinking theoretically about affect through landscapes practices of commemoration visitor experience site interpretation and other heritage work politeness is political it is easy to disregard our everyday street level interactions and the politeness or impoliteness by which they are marked but those interactions determine the quality of the social atmosphere we inhabit and democracies cannot flourish without an atmosphere congenial to their ends we must therefore enlarge our understanding of citizenship to encompass the democracy of everyday living and we must learn to think politically about the dilemmas of politeness it presents the politics of politeness develops the first sustained account of ordinary citizenship arguing for the political significance of everyday urban interactions edyvane proposes an interpretation of politeness as civility and as a key political practice for democracies against recent conceptualisations of polite civility as a communicative virtue the book elaborates an innovative ceremonial account that takes seriously the ritual like character of polite interaction and its embeddedness in a larger civilisational discourse drawing on an eclectic range of sources from empirical ethnography to novels and tv shows the book offers a new perspective on familiar dilemmas of everyday politeness what should you do when codes of manners embarrassingly clash should you say something when a shop assistant slights another customer or should you mind your own business how should you finesse awkward encounters with beggars and vagrants and is there ever any place for rudeness in polite society by treating these dilemmas as political problems as problems of democratic citizenship we gain fresh insight into them into why they matter and how to navigate them more wisely a personal and historical examination of white catholic anti blackness in the us told through 5 generations of one family and a call for meaningful racial healing and justice within catholicism excavating her catholic family s entanglements with race and racism from the time they immigrated to america to the present maureen o connell traces by implication how the larger catholic population became white and why despite the tenets of their faith so many white catholics have lukewarm commitments to racial justice o connell was raised by devoutly catholic parents with a clear moral and civic guiding principle those to whom much is given much is expected she became a theologian steeped in social ethics engaged in critical race theory and trained in the fundamentals of anti racism and still she found herself failing to see how her well meaning actions affected the black members of her congregations it seemed that whenever she tried to undo the knots of racism she only ended up getting more tangled in them undoing the knots weaves together narrative history theology and critical race theory to begin undoing these knots to move away from doing good and giving back and toward dismantling the white catholic identity and the economic and social structures it has erected and maintained
